The following are the state and federal Reemployment Assistance Weekly Benefit Payment statuses and what they mean:

Waiting Week – The first week of your Reemployment Assistance claim for which you would have been eligible for payment is an unpaid week, according to state law. However, Governor DeSantis has waived the requirement to wait a week to receive Reemployment Assistance benefits beginning March 29, 2020 until September 5, 2020. Claims filed during this time are eligible to receive payment during this week. Claims filed from March 29, 2020 through the week ending July 25, 2020 are also eligible to receive a Federal Pandemic Unemployment Compensation payment for the waiting week. CONNECT will not reflect you have been paid for the waiting week; however, all claimants who are eligible for Reemployment Assistance will be paid the waiting week.

Disqualified – This means you have been determined ineligible to receive Reemployment Assistance benefits for that week. You should check your non-monetary determinations in your inbox to find out the reason for disqualification. If you believe your weeks have been deem “disqualified” in error, please contact the Reemployment Assistance Customer Service Center.
Monetary Ineligible – This means you did not earn enough money in the base period to be eligible to receive Reemployment Assistance benefits. This could be due to earning money that cannot be considered for purposes of Reemployment Assistance benefits or that the Department did not receive your base period wage information during the wage verification process. If you feel this status is incorrect, you should contact the Reemployment Assistance Customer Service Center.

Excess Reductions – During the request for benefit payments process, you indicated that you earned more money than your weekly Reemployment Assistance benefit claim amount for that week. This means you will not receive benefit payments for the weeks citing "Excess Reductions". If you feel this status is incorrect, you should contact the Reemployment Assistance Customer Service Center.
Hold – This means Reemployment Assistance benefit payments are being held until the claim has been reviewed by the Reemployment Assistance team. This may be for a variety of reasons. If this is the case for you, we recommend you call the Reemployment Assistance Customer Service Center.

Pending Monetary – A monetary determination is pending on your Reemployment Assistance claim. You should continue to request your benefit payments and check your CONNECT Inbox to see if any additional information is needed to assist the Reemployment Assistance team in processing your claim.

Pending – The Reemployment Assistance team is reviewing your Reemployment Assistance claim. You should continue to request your benefit payments and check your CONNECT Inbox to see if any additional information is needed to assist the Reemployment Assistance team in processing your claim.
Payable – You are due to receive your Reemployment Assistance benefits for that week, and payment should be available in whichever payment method has been chosen. We encourage all claimants to check their CONNECT account to ensure all contact information is accurate and up to date. You should continue to request your benefit payments bi-weekly.
