RECOMMENDED ORDER OF SPECIAL DEPUTY

TO: Altemese Smith,
Bureau Chief,
Reemployment Assistance Program
DEPARTMENT OF ECONOMIC OPPORTUNITY

This matter comes before the undersigned Special Deputy pursuant to the Petitioner's protest of the Respondent's determination dated January 17, 2013.

After due notice to the parties, a telephone hearing was held on June 11, 2013. The Petitioner, represented by its president, appeared and testified. The Petitioner's office manager testified as a witness. The Respondent, represented by a Department of Revenue Tax Specialist II, appeared and testified. The Joined Party declined to participate.

The record of the case, including the recording of the hearing and any exhibits submitted in evidence, is herewith transmitted. Proposed Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law were not received.

Issue:

Whether services performed for the Petitioner by the Joined Party constitute insured employment, and if so, the effective date of liability, pursuant to Section 443.036(19), 443.036(21); 443.1216, Florida Statutes.

Findings of Fact:

1. The Petitioner is a Florida profit corporation formed in 1997 to operate a Chiropractic medical office. The Petitioner's president is the Chiropractic physician.
2. The Petitioner's president is semi-retired and sees patients only on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday from 9 AM until 12 PM and from 2 PM until 5 PM.

3. The Petitioner was seeking to hire an individual to perform ultrasound treatments on the Petitioner's patients. The Joined Party was referred to the Petitioner as a retired nurse. The Joined Party submitted her resume to the Petitioner and was interviewed by the Petitioner's president. The president told that Joined Party that she would be hired only if she consented to be an independent contractor who was responsible for payment of her own taxes. The Joined Party accepted the offer of work and began work on April 1, 2011. There was no written agreement or contract between the parties.
4. No medical license or certification is required to perform ultrasound treatments. The Joined Party had never performed ultrasound treatments previously and it was necessary for the Petitioner's president and the office manager to train the Joined Party how to perform the work. The Petitioner paid the Joined Party during the training period.
5. All of the ultrasound treatments were performed on the Petitioner's patients at the Petitioner's office during the Petitioner's regular business hours. The Petitioner provided the ultrasound machine and all supplies that were needed to perform the work. The Joined Party did not have to provide any equipment, tools, or supplies and the Joined Party did not have any expenses in connection with the work.
6. The Petitioner determined the Joined Party's work schedule and instructed her as to when to perform the work. The Joined Party was not free to come and go as she pleased and she could not leave the Petitioner's office if there were patients present.
7. The Joined Party was supervised by the Petitioner's president who looked in on the Joined Party while she was performing the work to make sure that she was performing her duties appropriately.
8. The Joined Party was required to personally perform the work. She was not allowed to hire others to perform the work for her.
9. The Petitioner paid the Joined Party $11 per hour. Generally, the Petitioner paid the Joined Party on a weekly basis, however, if the Joined Party only worked a few hours during the week the Petitioner would sometimes wait until the following week to pay the Joined Party. No taxes were withheld from the pay and no fringe benefits were provided to the Joined Party by the Petitioner. At the end of 2011 the Petitioner reported the Joined Party's earnings on Form 1099-MISC as nonemployee compensation.
10. Either party had the right to terminate the relationship at any time without incurring liability for breach of contract. In April 2012 a patient informed the Petitioner's president that the Joined Party had burned the patient while performing ultrasound. As a result the Petitioner discharged the Joined Party on April 8, 2012.
11. The Joined Party filed a claim for unemployment compensation benefits, now known as reemployment assistance benefits, effective December 2, 2012. The filing on that date established a base period from July 1, 2011, through June 30, 2012. The Petitioner had not paid unemployment compensation tax on the Joined Party's earnings and the Joined Party did not receive credit for her earnings with the Petitioner. A Request for Reconsideration of Monetary Determination was filed and an investigation was assigned to the Department of Revenue to determine if the Joined Party performed services for the Petitioner as an employee or as an independent contractor.
12. On January 17, 2013, the Department of Revenue issued a determination holding that the Joined Party was the Petitioner's employee retroactive to April 1, 2011. The Petitioner filed a timely protest by mail postmarked February 1, 2013.

Conclusions of Law:

13. The issue in this case, whether services performed for the Petitioner by the Joined Party constitute employment subject to the Florida Reemployment Assistance Program Law, is governed by Chapter 443, Florida Statutes. Section 443.1216(1)(a)2., Florida Statutes, provides that employment subject to the chapter includes service performed by individuals under the usual common law rules applicable in determining an employer-employee relationship.
14. The Supreme Court of the United States held that the term "usual common law rules" is to be used in a generic sense to mean the "standards developed by the courts through the years of adjudication." United States v. W.M. Webb, Inc., 397 U.S. 179 (1970).
15. The Supreme Court of Florida adopted and approved the tests in 1 Restatement of Law, Agency 2d Section 220 (1958), for use to determine if an employment relationship exists. See Cantor v. Cochran, 184 So.2d 173 (Fla. 1966); Miami Herald Publishing Co. v. Kendall, 88 So.2d 276 (Fla. 1956); Magarian v. Southern Fruit Distributors, 1 So.2d 858 (Fla. 1941); see also Kane Furniture Corp. v. R. Miranda, 506 So.2d 1061 (Fla. 2d DCA 1987). In Brayshaw v. Agency for Workforce Innovation, et al; 58 So.3d 301 (Fla. 1st DCA 2011) the court stated that the statute does not refer to other rules or factors for determining the employment relationship and, therefore, the Department is limited to applying only Florida common law in determining the nature of an employment relationship.
16. Restatement of Law is a publication, prepared under the auspices of the American Law Institute, which explains the meaning of the law with regard to various court rulings. The Restatement sets forth a nonexclusive list of factors that are to be considered when judging whether a relationship is an employment relationship or an independent contractor relationship.
17. 1 Restatement of Law, Agency 2d Section 220 (1958) provides:
  - (1) A servant is a person employed to perform services for another and who, in the performance of the services, is subject to the other's control or right of control.
  - (2) The following matters of fact, among others, are to be considered:
    - (a) the extent of control which, by the agreement, the business may exercise over the details of the work;
    - (b) whether or not the one employed is engaged in a distinct occupation or business;
    - (c) the kind of occupation, with reference to whether, in the locality, the work is usually done under the direction of the employer or by a specialist without supervision;
    - (d) the skill required in the particular occupation;
    - (e) whether the employer or the worker supplies the instrumentalities, tools, and the place of work for the person doing the work;
    - (f) the length of time for which the person is employed;
    - (g) the method of payment, whether by the time or by the job;
    - (h) whether or not the work is a part of the regular business of the employer;
    - (i) whether or not the parties believe they are creating the relation of master and servant;
    - (j) whether the principal is or is not in business.
18. Comments in the Restatement explain that the word "servant" does not exclusively connote manual labor, and the word "employee" has largely replaced "servant" in statutes dealing with various aspects of the working relationship between two parties.
19. In Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services v. Department of Labor & Employment Security, 472 So.2d 1284 (Fla. 1st DCA 1985) the court confirmed that the factors listed in the Restatement are the proper factors to be considered in determining whether an employer-employee relationship exists. However, in citing La Grande v. B&L Services, Inc., 432 So.2d 1364, 1366 (Fla. 1st DCA 1983), the court acknowledged that the question of whether a person is properly classified an employee or an independent contractor often can not be answered by reference to "hard and fast" rules, but rather must be addressed on a case-by-case basis.

20. The evidence reveals that there was no written agreement between the parties. The only evidence regarding a verbal agreement is the testimony of the Petitioner's president that he told the Joined Party when she applied for work that the only way he would hire her was as an independent contractor. The Florida Supreme Court held that in determining the status of a working relationship, the agreement between the parties should be examined if there is one. The agreement should be honored, unless other provisions of the agreement, or the actual practice of the parties, demonstrate that the agreement is not a valid indicator of the status of the working relationship. Keith v. News & Sun Sentinel Co., 667 So.2d 167 (Fla. 1995). In Justice v. Belford Trucking Company, Inc., 272 So.2d 131 (Fla. 1972), a case involving an independent contractor agreement which specified that the worker was not to be considered the employee of the employing unit at any time, under any circumstances, or for any purpose, the Florida Supreme Court commented "while the obvious purpose to be accomplished by this document was to evince an independent contractor status, such status depends not on the statements of the parties but upon all the circumstances of their dealings with each other."
21. The Petitioner operates a business which provides medical treatment for the Petitioner's patients. The Joined Party was hired by the Petitioner to provide ultrasound services for the Petitioner's patients under the direction of the Petitioner. The services which the Joined Party provided were not separate and distinct from the Petitioner's business but were an integral and necessary part of the business. The Petitioner provided the place of work and all equipment and supplies that were needed to perform the work. The Joined Party did not have any expenses in connection with the work and was not at risk of suffering a financial loss from services performed.
22. Prior to working for the Petitioner the Joined Party had never performed ultrasound work. The Petitioner trained the Joined Party how to do the work and supervised her while she performed the work. No certification was required to perform the work. It was not shown that any skill or special knowledge was required to perform the work. The greater the skill or special knowledge required to perform the work, the more likely the relationship will be found to be one of independent contractor. Florida Gulf Coast Symphony v. Florida Department of Labor & Employment Sec., 386 So.2d 259 (Fla. 2d DCA 1980)
23. The Petitioner determined the Joined Party's work schedule and instructed her as to when she was to perform the work. She was not allowed to leave if there were patients in the office. The Petitioner paid the Joined Party by time worked rather than based on production or by the job. The fact that the Petitioner chose not to withhold payroll taxes from the pay does not, standing alone, establish an independent contractor relationship. Section 443.1217(1), Florida Statutes, provides that the wages subject to the Reemployment Assistance Program Law include all remuneration for employment including commissions, bonuses, back pay awards, and the cash value of all remuneration in any medium other than cash.
24. The Joined Party performed services for the Petitioner for a period in excess of one year. Either party could terminate the relationship at any time without incurring liability for breach of contract. These facts reveal the existence of an at-will relationship of relative permanence. The relationship was terminated by the Petitioner. In Cantor v. Cochran, 184 So.2d 173 (Fla. 1966), the court in quoting 1 Larson, Workmens' Compensation Law, Section 44.35 stated: "The power to fire is the power to control. The absolute right to terminate the relationship without liability is not consistent with the concept of independent contractor, under which the contractor should have the legal right to complete the project contracted for and to treat any attempt to prevent completion as a breach of contract."

- 25. The evidence reveals that the Petitioner controlled what work was performed, who performed the work, where it was performed, when it was performed, and how it was performed. Whether a worker is an employee or an independent contractor is determined by measuring the control exercised by the employer over the worker. If the control exercised extends to the manner in which a task is to be performed, then the worker is an employee rather than an independent contractor. In Cawthon v. Phillips Petroleum Co., 124 So 2d 517 (Fla. 2d DCA 1960) the court explained: Where the employee is merely subject to the control or direction of the employer as to the result to be procured, he is an independent contractor; if the employee is subject to the control of the employer as to the means to be used, then he is not an independent contractor.
- 26. It is concluded that the services performed for the Petitioner by the Joined Party constitute insured employment.

Recommendation: It is recommended that the determination dated January 17, 2013, be AFFIRMED.

Respectfully submitted on June 14, 2013.
