In the matter of:

Claimant/Appellant

R.A.A.C. Order No. 13-03784

vs.

Referee Decision No. 13-21881U

Employer/Appellee

ORDER OF REEMPLOYMENT ASSISTANCE APPEALS COMMISSION

This case comes before the Commission for disposition of the claimant's appeal pursuant to Section 443.151(4)(c), Florida Statutes, of a referee's decision wherein the claimant was held disqualified from receipt of benefits and the employer's account was noncharged.

Pursuant to the appeal filed in this case, the Reemployment Assistance Appeals Commission has conducted a complete review of the evidentiary hearing record and decision of the appeals referee. See §443.151(4)(c), Fla. Stat. By law, the Commission's review is limited to those matters that were presented to the referee and are contained in the official record.

The issue before the Commission is whether the claimant was discharged by the employer for misconduct connected with work as provided in Section 443.101(1), Florida Statutes.

The referee's findings of fact state as follows:

The claimant worked for the employer as a certified service tech from February 16, 2010, to November 27, 2012. The employer's policies prohibit employees from carry[ing] weapons on the employer's premises. The claimant received the employer's policy at the time of hire via the employer's intranet. On or about November 2, 2012, the claimant was in an altercation with an employee on the employer's property. The claimant pulled a gun from his car to protect himself from the other employee. The employee discharged the gun in the air. The claimant was discharged for carrying a weapon on the employer's property.

Based on these findings, the referee held the claimant was discharged for misconduct connected with work. Upon review of the record and the arguments on appeal, the Commission concludes the referee's decision is not supported by competent and substantial evidence and, therefore, is not in accord with the law; accordingly, it is reversed.

When the issue before the appeals referee relates to the claimant's separation from employment, the employer bears the initial burden of proving either the claimant was discharged for misconduct connected with work or the claimant voluntarily quit, in which case the burden shifts to the claimant to show good cause for quitting. See Lewis v. Lakeland Health Care Ctr., Inc., 685 So. 2d 876, 878 (Fla. 2d DCA 1996). The proof necessary to carry this burden must consist of competent, substantial evidence. See Tallahassee Housing Authority v. Unemployment Appeals Commission, 483 So. 2d 413 (Fla. 1986); De Groot v. Sheffield, 95 So. 2d 912 (Fla. 1957). In this case, the record reflects the claimant was discharged. The employer, however, failed to meet its burden of establishing the claimant's discharge was for misconduct connected with work.

Section 443.036(30), Florida Statutes, states that misconduct connected with work, "irrespective of whether the misconduct occurs at the workplace or during working hours, includes, but is not limited to, the following, which may not be construed in pari materia with each other":

- (a) Conduct demonstrating a conscious disregard of an employer's interests and found to be a deliberate violation or disregard of the reasonable standards of behavior which the employer expects of his or her employee.
- (b) Carelessness or negligence to a degree or recurrence that manifests culpability or wrongful intent, or shows an intentional and substantial disregard of the employer's interests or of the employee's duties and obligations to his or her employer.
- (c) Chronic absenteeism or tardiness in deliberate violation of a known policy of the employer or one or more unapproved absences following a written reprimand or warning relating to more than one unapproved absence.

(d) A willful and deliberate violation of a standard or regulation of this state by an employee of an employer licensed or certified by this state, which violation would cause the employer to be sanctioned or have its license or certification suspended by this state.

(e) A violation of an employer's rule, unless the claimant can demonstrate that:

1. He or she did not know, and could not reasonably know, of the rule's requirements;
2. The rule is not lawful or not reasonably related to the job environment and performance; or
3. The rule is not fairly or consistently enforced.

At the hearing before the appeals referee, the employer's human resource representative testified the claimant was discharged for allegedly violating the employer's policy which prohibited employees from carrying weapons on company premises. The human resources representative, however, admittedly had no firsthand knowledge regarding the circumstances that led to the claimant's job separation. The witness explained that her knowledge of the claimant's separation was based on the information documented in the separation notice which she received from a supervisor who is no longer employed by the company. The employer did not show the claimant was carrying a weapon on company property as prohibited by the policy; accordingly, the employer failed to establish the claimant violated a rule.

The Commission notes the claimant's testimony reflects he was not on duty at the time of the incident and that he was only on the employer's property to drive home another employee who was intoxicated. His testimony further reflects he acted in self-defense when the employee approached him displaying hostility and it was the employee, not the claimant, who actually discharged the firearm in the air after she forcibly took the firearm from him. The employer has failed to demonstrate how the claimant's actions in defending himself during off-duty hours violated any existing policy and warrants disqualification under subsection (e) or any other subsection of the statutory definition of misconduct set forth above. Additionally, Section 790.251(4), Florida Statutes, allows individuals who obtain a concealed weapon license to carry firearms if locked in the car and used in self-defense when reasonably necessary. See Crespo v. Florida Reemployment Assistance Appeals

Commission, 37 Fla. L. Weekly D 2771 (Fla. 3d DCA 2012). Based solely on the competent evidence of record, the Commission concludes that the claimant's actions did not rise to the level of misconduct as that term is defined in Section 443.036(30), Florida Statutes. The claimant, therefore, is not disqualified from the receipt of benefits.

The decision of the appeals referee is reversed. If otherwise eligible, the claimant is entitled to benefits. The employer's record shall be charged with its proportionate share of benefits paid in connection with this claim.

It is so ordered.

Important appeal rights are explained at the end of this decision.

Derechos de apelación importantes son explicados al final de esta decisión.

Yo eksplike kèk dwa dapèl enpòtan lan fen desizyon sa a.

Issues Involved:

SEPARATION: Whether the claimant was discharged for misconduct connected with work or voluntarily left work without good cause as defined in the statute, pursuant to Sections 443.101(1), (9), (10), (11); 443.036(30), Florida Statutes; Rule 73B-11.020, Florida Administrative Code.

CHARGES TO EMPLOYMENT RECORD: Whether benefit payments made to the claimant shall be charged to the employment record of the employer, pursuant to Sections 443.101(9); 443.131(3)(a), Florida Statutes; Rules 73B-10.026, 11.018, Florida Administrative Code. (If employer charges are not at issue on the current claim, the hearing may determine charges on a subsequent claim.)

Findings of Fact: The claimant worked for the employer as a certified service tech from February 16, 2010 to November 27, 2012. The employer's policies prohibit employees from carry weapons on the employer's premises. The claimant received the employer's policy at the time of hire via the employer's intranet. On or about November 22, 2012, the claimant was in an altercation with an employee on the employer's property. The claimant pulled a gun from his car to protect himself from the other employee. The employee discharged the gun in the air. The claimant was discharged for carrying a weapon on the employer's property.

Conclusions of Law: As of June 27, 2011, Florida Statute Section 443.036(30) defines misconduct connected with work as, but is not limited to, the following, which may not be construed in pari materia with each other:

- (a) Conduct demonstrating conscious disregard of an employer's interests and found to be a deliberate violation or disregard of the reasonable standards of behavior which the employer expects of his or her employee.
- (b) Carelessness or negligence to a degree or recurrence that manifests culpability, or wrongful intent, or shows an intentional and substantial disregard of the employer's interest or of the employee's duties and obligations to his or her employer.
- (c) Chronic absenteeism or tardiness in deliberate violation of a known policy of the employer or one or more unapproved absences following a written reprimand or warning relating to more than one unapproved absence.
- (d) A willful and deliberate violation of a standard or regulation of this state by an employee of an employer licensed or certified by this state, which violation would cause the employer to be sanctioned or have its license or certification suspended by this state.
- (e) A violation of an employer's rule, unless the claimant can demonstrate that:
  1. He or she did not know, and could not reasonably know, of the rules requirements;
  2. The rule is not lawful or not reasonably related to the job environment and performance; or
  3. The rule is not fairly or consistently enforced.

The record reflects that the claimant was discharged. The claimant knew or should have known that the employer prohibits carrying weapons on its premises. Rather than contacting the authorities to handle the hostile employee, the claimant chose to take out a weapon. The claimant violated the employer's policy prohibiting weapons on the property. Therefore, the claimant was discharged for misconduct connected with work and has been properly disqualified.

Decision: The determination dated February 22, 2013, disqualifying the claimant and relieving the employer's account of charges, is affirmed.

If this decision disqualifies and/or holds the claimant ineligible for benefits already received, the claimant will be required to repay those benefits. The specific amount of any overpayment will be calculated by the department and set forth in a separate overpayment determination, unless specified in this decision. However, the time to request review of this decision is as shown above and is not stopped, delayed or extended by any other determination, decision or order.

This is to certify that a copy of the above decision was mailed to the last known address of each interested party on April 26, 2013.
