Claimant/Appellee

R.A.A.C. Order No. 13-05379

vs.

Referee Decision No. 13-40770U

Employer/Appellant

ORDER OF REEMPLOYMENT ASSISTANCE APPEALS COMMISSION

This case comes before the Commission for disposition of an appeal of the decision of a reemployment assistance appeals referee pursuant to Section 443.151(4)(c), Florida Statutes. The referee's decision stated that a request for review should specify any and all allegations of error with respect to the referee's decision, and that allegations of error not specifically set forth in the request for review may be considered waived.

Upon appeal of an examiner's determination, a referee schedules a hearing. Parties are advised prior to the hearing that the hearing is their only opportunity to present all of their evidence in support of their case. The appeals referee has responsibility to develop the hearing record, weigh the evidence, resolve conflicts in the evidence, and render a decision supported by competent and substantial evidence. Section 443.151(4)(b)5., Florida Statutes, provides that any part of the evidence may be received in written form, and all testimony of parties and witnesses shall be made under oath. Irrelevant, immaterial, or unduly repetitious evidence shall be excluded, but all other evidence of a type commonly relied upon by reasonably prudent persons in the conduct of their affairs is admissible, whether or not such evidence would be admissible in a trial in state court. Hearsay evidence may be used for the purpose of supplementing or explaining other evidence, or to support a finding if it would be admissible over objection in civil actions. Notwithstanding Section 120.57(1)(c), Florida Statutes, hearsay evidence may support a finding of fact if the party against whom it is offered has a reasonable opportunity to review such evidence prior to the hearing and the appeals referee or special deputy determines, after considering all relevant facts and circumstances, that the evidence is trustworthy and probative and that the interests of justice are best served by its admission into evidence.

By law, the Commission's review is limited to those matters that were presented to the referee and are contained in the official record. A decision of an appeals referee cannot be overturned by the Commission if the referee's material findings are supported by competent and substantial evidence and the decision comports with the legal standards established by the Florida Legislature. The Commission cannot reweigh the evidence or consider additional evidence that a party could have reasonably been expected to present to the referee during the hearing. Additionally, it is the responsibility of the appeals referee to judge the credibility of the witnesses and to resolve conflicts in evidence, including testimonial evidence. Absent extraordinary circumstances, the Commission cannot substitute its judgment and overturn a referee's conflict resolution.

Having considered all arguments raised on appeal and having reviewed the hearing record, the Commission concludes no legal basis exists to reopen or supplement the record by the acceptance of any additional evidence sent to the Commission or to remand the case for further proceedings.

The Commission has reviewed the entire record in this case and concludes that competent, substantial evidence exists to support the referee's findings of fact. The appeals referee concluded the claimant's actions did not constitute misconduct connected within the meaning of Section 443.036(30), Florida Statutes. On appeal to the Commission, the employer argues that the claimant's violations of the employer's regulatory policies constituted misconduct because the claimant's failure to follow its multi-step procedure when dealing with customer calls constituted misconduct. The Commission notes that, regarding subparagraph (e) of the above-noted statute, minor negligence in failing to strictly adhere to a detailed, multi-step work procedure does not constitute misconduct under subparagraph (e), because such a procedure does not constitute a "rule" as contemplated by the statute.

The referee's decision is affirmed.

It is so ordered.

DECISION OF APPEALS REFEREE

Important appeal rights are explained at the end of this decision.

Derechos de apelación importantes son explicados al final de esta decisión.

Yo eksplike kèk dwa dapèl enpòtan lan fen desizyon sa a.

Issues Involved:

SEPARATION: Whether the claimant was discharged for misconduct connected with work or voluntarily left work without good cause as defined in the statute, pursuant to Sections 443.101(1), (9), (10), (11); 443.036(30), Florida Statutes; Rule 73B-11.020, Florida Administrative Code.

CHARGES TO EMPLOYMENT RECORD: Whether benefit payments made to the claimant shall be charged to the employment record of the employer, pursuant to Sections 443.101(9); 443.131(3)(a), Florida Statutes; Rules 73B-10.026, 11.018, Florida Administrative Code. (If employer charges are not at issue on the current claim, the hearing may determine charges on a subsequent claim.)

Findings of Fact: The claimant was a customer service specialist for from September 14, 2012 through February 22, 2013. The claimant was discharged for allegedly failing to verify the customer's identification on two calls and forgetting to verify a customer was on the checking account before taking a payment.

Conclusions of Law: As of June 27, 2011, the law provides that a claimant who was discharged for misconduct connected with work will be disqualified for benefits. "Misconduct", irrespective of whether the misconduct occurs at the workplace or during working hours, includes, but is not limited to, the following, conduct demonstrating conscious disregard of an employer's interest and found to be deliberate violation or disregard of the reasonable standards of behavior which the employer expects of his or her employee, or carelessness or negligence to a degree or recurrence that manifests culpability, wrongful intent, or shows an intentional and substantial disregard of the employer's interest or of the employee's duties and obligations to the employer.

The record reflects that the claimant was discharged. When a claimant has been discharged from his employment, it is incumbent upon the employer to prove that he was discharged for misconduct connected with work before benefits can be denied. In order to do so, the employer must show by a preponderance of competent evidence that the claimant engaged in an act or course of conduct that violated his duties and obligations to the employer. Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services v. Unemployment Appeals Commission, 503 So2d 403 (Fla. 1st DCA 1987). In this case the employer has not presented the necessary evidence to establish that the claimant was discharged for misconduct. The employer's evidence regarding the claimant's separation is hearsay in its entirety. Hearsay evidence may be used for the purpose of supplementing or explaining other evidence, or to support a finding if it would be admissible over objection in civil actions. §443.151(4)(b)5, Fla. Stat. Notwithstanding §120.57(1)(c), hearsay evidence may support a finding of fact if: The party against whom it is offered has a reasonable opportunity to review such evidence prior to the hearing; and The appeals referee or special deputy determines, after considering all relevant facts and circumstances, that the evidence is trustworthy and probative and that the interests of justice are best served by its admission into evidence. In this case, the employer did not present any witness that was present when the claimant made the alleged mistakes nor did they provide any recording of the alleged calls. The referee does not find it to be in the interest of justice to admit the employer's hearsay testimony.

It is concluded that while the employer may have made a valid business decision to discharge the claimant, it has not presented evidence to show that the claimant's discharge was for misconduct connected with work. Accordingly, the claimant is qualified based on her separation from the employer.

Decision: The determination dated April 26, 2013, disqualifying the claimant and relieving the employer's account is reversed.

If this decision disqualifies and/or holds the claimant ineligible for benefits already received, the claimant will be required to repay those benefits. The specific amount of any overpayment will be calculated by the department and set forth in a separate overpayment determination, unless specified in this decision. However, the time to request review of this decision is as shown above and is not stopped, delayed or extended by any other determination, decision or order.

This is to certify that a copy of the above decision was mailed to the last known address of each interested party on June 5, 2013.
